LETTERS WORTH READING

Sinhapura
29th April 1927

Governor
Queens House
Colombo

Your Excellency,

I have just received your letter of the 28th instant and I hasten to make amends and to apologize for my stupid mistake in regard to the Pearl Fishery Lease.

As for the Excise Bill, I am at a loss to understand what you mean by saying that you can well understand my not liking that, and that there were too many vested interests that found it an unpleasant piece of legislation; and that my disapproval of it is quite comprehensible!

I opposed the bill because I thought that by placing the Country at the mercy of these cormorant renters, and opening toddy shops in practically every village, my poor fellow-countrymen would become more and more addicted to the use of intoxicating liquor.

I have always been for total prohibition.

I spoke my mind to you quite frankly; and I expected similar courtesy from you. I regret that you should have had recourse to veiled insinuations, which "pass by me as the idle wind"!

Yours faithfully
C.E. Victor S. Corea

Note:

Victor Corea, contested E.W. Jayewardene (President J.R. Jayewardene's father) in his stronghold that was Colombo Town North in the Legislative Council election and created a sensation by winning the seat with an overwhelming majority.

He had a verbal battle with the Governor, Sir Hugh Clifford over a speech the Governor had made at Hyde Park Hotel, London in November 1912 and referred to a 'core of rot' which Victor Corea thought was a reference to the freedom fighters including him who were demanding Independence for Ceylon when the country was governed by the British. Despite their clash, Governor Clifford had a high regard and respect for Victor Corea which is proved in letters that were exchanged between the two.

EDITORIAL

We are at the beginning of a new year with yet another Corea at the helm guiding the destinies of the Edirimana Corea Family Union in the year 2010/11. With the wealth of talent that is available within the Union the general membership can look forward to a year of consolidation and more opportunities for fellowship. We also need to be mindful of rising costs and find ways and means of raising funds for the Union.

Strength to an organization comes from its members. As it has been from the very inception the Edirimana Corea Family Union has had the rare distinction of having Presidents who gave dynamic leadership to the Union. The President, being a single person is only the cog in a wheel and needless to say it is the general membership individually and collectively that can give power to transform our plans into reality.

Let's put our shoulders to the wheel, accomplish our goals and at the end of the year pat ourselves on the back and say to ourselves that 'WE DID IT'!!

Re-produced from the Governor's letter

Queen's House, Colombo
April 3rd 1927
11.30 p.m.

Dear Mr Corea,

I arrived only a few moments ago from Nuwara Eliya whither I have come via Kandy and Kegalla, and I find your letter of April 2nd. awaiting me.

I do not know whether you ever read the speech delivered by me in London at, I think, the Hyde Park Hotel, in November, 1912, -- it was made at a dinner given to Lady Clifford and myself by the Council and Members of the Ceylon Association in England -- in which that oft quoted phrase "a little core of rot" occurred? I must confess that I have not read it myself for a good many years. I think you will find that the phrase in question was never, and never could have been, applied by me, as you suggest in your letter under reply is the case, "to the party demanding self-government for Ceylon." It was applied to a section of that party which, in my judgement was steadily and systematically endeavouring to undermine Authority in Ceylon and to bring law and order, and all who represented them, into ridicule, hatred and contempt. I knew these people to be mainly led and inspired by poor Armand de Souza -- who was not himself a Ceylonese and who cared not a rap how much loss or ruin he might bring upon the people of this country. I knew that the poor fellow had been a friend of mine to whom I had extended a good deal of confidence; that he had been accustomed to talk matters over with me and had often received in that way, not only useful information for his paper -- The Morning Leader -- but new lights upon public questions and upon the intentions of the Government concerning them, which had shown him quite clearly and convincingly that I and my colleagues were not sitting up o' nights plotting the destruction of Ceylon and the utter demoralization and subversion of its people, but instead were steadily and busily engaged in devoting our every energy to the advancement of the prosperity of the island and to the service of all her people. Up to the time of which I shall presently speak, he was not only my friend, but in some sort my disciple; and he knew -- no man better -- that I was not the arch-enemy of mankind that he was later bent upon persuading the readers of the Morning Leader was to be detected lurking under my skin.

One unhappy day the late Sir Hector Van Cuylenberg (then Mr Van Cuylenberg) the owner of the Independent -- which at that time was distinctively the Burgher organ -- prosecuted Armand de Souza for libel, and issued a sub paeon requiring my presence as a witness. I was very reluctant to appear and enquired from the then Attorney General whether it would not be possible for me to plead privilege &c. &c.. I, however, was advised that I had no option but to appear in the Colombo Police Court, which I accordingly did. Poor Armand de Souza got it into his head -- the case went against him -- that the whole thing was a conspiracy into which I had entered with Van Cuylenberg in order to humiliate and injure him; and from that moment his whole outlook changed. I tried to get him to come and see me several times, but in vain.

It is the fashion in certain quarters to write and speak as though I was hounded out of Ceylon when I left the Island on promotion in 1912. Anybody whose memory goes back fifteen years knows, of course, that the reverse is the case. Turn to the files of the newspapers for the first half of September, 1912, and you will read therein what actually occurred.

There was, however, one public meeting got up in order to register a hope that I should never be allowed to return to Ceylon, the prime movers in which were the late Armand de Souza, the late Arthur Alvis -- a man of a very different calibre -- and Mr C.P. Dias, the Headmaster of Wesley College and a Member of the Municipal Council. Mr Alvis' dissatisfaction was explained where, I admit, I hit him rather hard about a recent contribution of his to the discussion about the Excise Bill. I was at that time nearly fifteen years younger than I am to-day, and the young are all too often impelled to make a debating point without much thought as to whether their words wound. This was the case on this occasion, and I, by a few sentences, which might quite easily have been so turned as to secure my point without lacerating Mr Arthur Alvis' feelings, I converted a friend into a rather vindictive enemy. In what way I had trodden upon the toes of Mr C.P. Dias I do not know to this day; but it gave me great pleasure last year to recommend that his long public services should be publicly recognized and rewarded; and I am glad to remember that this act fell to me to perform, rather than to any other. As for the rank and file of the so-called monster public meeting, the hall was packed by operatives from the neighbouring Railway shops, the bulk of whom knew nothing whatever about me or about the proceedings; and it is on record that when, at the conclusion of the meeting, an attempt was made to sing God Save the King the noise which resulted was a meaningless uproar, thus showing the ignorance of the men who had been lured into the hall simply to try to give the meeting some sort of bulk.

All these facts are thoroughly well known to all who were in Ceylon at the time and who were taking any interest in public affairs. It is also known, equally well, that the Excise Bill, -- for which I fought, almost single handed, whole phalanxes of very wealthy vested interests -- was a measure which received the unanimous support of the Unofficial Members of the Legislative Council, as soon as I had explained to them in detail its objects and its scope; and that it is the foundation-stone upon which the entire temperance-movement of to-day has been built up. I was notoriously abused for bringing in that Bill; but I consider that, by doing so, I was rendering, not for the first time, a notable service to the people of Ceylon. It is a pity, I suggest, of set purpose to distort and misrepresent even quite recent local history. Hardly anybody has the energy or the industry to turn up the newspaper files to ascertain for himself what the true facts actually were; and it is by this means that things that are false gain currency in this Island to the serious detriment of the public life of her people.

To return for a moment to my phrase "the little core of rot." I used it to describe the attempt that was then being made to discredit Authority and to bring into hatred and contempt those whose duty it chanced to be to exercise authority in Ceylon. I advised all concerned to watch it lest it turned disastrously and brought bloodshed and misery. The danger which I detected and warned all Ceylon against came in 1915 -- with contempt for law and order, sedulously implanted in the hearts of an essentially law-abiding peasant population, can explain the wholesale murdering and plundering of Moormen traders with which the Riots of 1915 began.

I am not going to discuss the methods adopted for their suppression -- for them I, thank God, have no responsibility. I, having left the Island more than 18 months earlier; but the outbreak of riots was the inevitable spreading of "the little core of rot" to which I drew attention in November, 1912. That was why I was sorry to hear you say on November 30th, 1925 that you stood for that evil thing. I think I understand the aspirations of those who desire self-government in Ceylon, and sympathise with them too, as much as any man living; but for those who desire, by slow means or by swift, to convert this beautiful Island into a shambles, or who think that by making Authority hateful they are paving the way for the exercise of Authority on their own account, personally can find nothing but condemnation.

Also, I am very far from being convinced that that really is your point of view; for, if I thought otherwise, I should hardly take the trouble to write this letter to you, now on the very eve of my final departure from Ceylon, and at a time when the burden of work laid upon me calls for no gratuitous additions.

I should be very glad to see your son if you will send him to call upon me; or better still if you will bring him to see me.

Very Truly Yours
Hugh Clifford

Note:

The son referred to at the end of the letter is Carlton (Lilani Corea Dharmaratne's father) who passed the Civil Service and returned from England. He was appointed the Government Agent, Vavuniya. Prime Minister Dudley Senanayake invited Carlton to be an Ambassador and gave him the privilege of selecting the country of his choice. Despite repeated requests he declined to accept the Prime Minister's generous offer.

PLUG AND PLAY

from the editor's desk

An Irishman by the name of Jerry MacCaffrey married to a Sri Lankan went to the Local Government Office to pay the rates and taxes.

He was next in the queue. The female clerk, without looking up but continuing to look down at the receipt book asked, 'Name?'

'The Irishman answered,' MacCaffrey'

'What?' asked the clerk, again without looking up. The Irishman somewhat embarrassed and annoyed said 'MacCaffrey'. 'What?' asked the clerk, this time looking straight into the eyes of the Irishman. Realizing that she never will know how to spell MacCaffrey said, 'Put William'; since William was his wife's surname.

When he went home and handed over the receipt to his wife, she looked at it and said, 'Darling, you have brought someone else's receipt'

Jerry hastily grabbed it and was horrified to find that the name had been written as 'PUTWILLIAM'

PEDIGREE CHART

Every effort is being made to put the final touches to the family Pedigree Chart which is unique in many ways. A lot of research has gone into achieving its current presentation and there is still more work to be done.

Families that have not sent in their particulars up to the present generation, are requested to check with Deva Corea and make sure that their family particulars have gone into the draft.

Failure to do so will only mean that their family will be left out of a Chart that is unique and impressive in compilation and nothing can be done after it has gone into print.

SHIRLEY COREA

man of high principles and an intrepid fighter

Taken from the Sunday Times written by C.X. MARTYN, M.P. for Jaffna

The death of Mr Shirley Corea removes from our midst a personality of worth and importance. He hailed from a distinguished family that has for more than one generation made a substantial contribution in our battle for political freedom from the yoke of Imperialism.

Who does not remember his father, the late Mr C.E. Corea, the dauntless fighter for the rights of the people, the accomplished debater, a President of the National Congress and a man of uncompromising principles? Who can forget his uncle, the late Mr Victor Corea of poll-tax fame, the Legislative Councillor who never gave any quarter to the white bureaucracy of his day?

Who does not know his kinsman, Sir Claude Corea, the suave and gentle politician, the diplomat par excellence with a rare finesse? Shirley Corea, worthily upheld the great traditions of his family and added to the debt the country owes to the Corea family.

FEARLESS

Shirley, had his early education at Wesley College, Royal College and S. Thomas' College, where he acquired a reputation as a debater. He subsequently joined the Law College, where he held the office of General Secretary of the Law College Students' Union, which was the highest unofficial position a law student could then hold. He won the Gold Medal for Oratory.

He graduated as a Proctor and joined the Bar of Chilaw, the home of the Coreas where they had established a reputation as lawyers of honesty and competence.

I knew him as a law student and he practised regularly before me as a lawyer for about three years. His advocacy was characterised by thoroughness, method, persistence and gentlemanliness. He knew his facts inside out; he knew when to press hard and when to soften his approach.

A client who went to him felt his interests were in the safest hands. Though a fearless fighter, he seldom got on the wrong side of a reasonable judge. If a High Court had been established in Chilaw earlier he would have won a wide reputation as an outstanding advocate of the calibre of Cox Spoule or E.M. Karunaratne.

He was a founder member of the Law Society of which he became a Vice-President and subsequently its President. In recognition of his services his portrait was unveiled and now it adorns the walls of the Law Society Hall. He was a member of the World Peace Through Law and attended in this connection conferences in Australia, Japan and Athens as a delegate from Sri Lanka.

Shirley, entered the arena of politics to which he was no stranger, as politics was in his veins. He took to local politics first, and then entered Parliament as Member for Chilaw in 1952. He was Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Trade and Commerce and Fisheries and was thereafter nominated Minister in the Sir John Kotelawala Cabinet.

As a Cabinet Minister he showed exceptional honesty, a keen national ardour and a deep sense of duty. As Minister, he travelled widely in 1954 and 1965 endeavouring to find new markets for Ceylon products. Among the countries he visited were China, Japan, Egypt, India, England, Ireland, France, Norway, Denmark, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia.

POLITICS

The path of politics was not a smooth one for him. In 1956 the wave that swept the late S.W.R.D. Bandaranaike into power swept Shirley out of his seat. He did not contest the 1960 elections, but he did not abandon politics.

He gave the benefit of his knowledge, experience and wisdom to his constituents, who did not forget him. They returned him to Parliament in 1965. He became Deputy Speaker and on the death of his colleague and friend, Sir Albert Peries, he became Speaker. As Mr. Speaker he showed a full grasp of parliamentary procedure and combined firmness with understanding. Shirley, was also a planter who took a keen interest in the coconut industry. He was President of the Chilaw-Negombo Planters' Association for ten years. His presidential addresses were always appreciated as they contained many useful suggestions for the improvement and development of the industry.

Shirley, has now left us and gone to a better land. He was a righteous man, a devoted churchman, a loyal friend and an indefatigable worker for any cause espoused. To him may the words of King David be aptly applied: " Know ye not that there is a Prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel."

WORDS OF ENCOURAGEMENT FROM PRESIDENT OBAMA

Eleven year old Rakith Jayewardene, born in Sri Lanka is the son of Kishan and Sharmini Jayewardene, living in Cleveland, USA. In school, he is quite a guy, being a 'black belt' in tikondo, a good basketball player and a talented musician. He is also a boy scout who takes his scouting seriously. Although he has reason to be proud of his achievements in all these extra-curricular activities where he outshines all his classmates, is in his studies.

Rakith, has at every school test topped the class in obtaining 'Straight As' so much so that he had a pleasant surprise coming by post.

It was a letter from The White House and one that was sent to him by President Barack Obama. In his usual calm manner Rakith collected the mail from their mail box and handed them to his mother. Sharmini took a quick look at the mail and suddenly noticed a letter addressed to her little son Rakith from The White House. She wasn't sure whether what she was seeing was fact or fiction. She ripped open the envelope impatiently wanting to know what the President of the United States of America had to say to her son. And this is What the letter said:

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON
February 27, 2009

I am delighted to join your family, friends and community in congratulating you on receiving the President's Education Award. By earning this honor, you have shown a deep personal commitment to educational excellence and I commend you for your hard work.

Nothing is more important to our Nation's long-term success than educating our future leaders. Your commitment to learning will help you meet the educational and professional demands in your future and will help lead America to a better day.

I am confident that you will build on this achievement as you strive for even higher goals in the future. I wish you all the best for continued success in the years ahead.

Rakith still continues to top the class with 'Straight As' and last week was being felicitated again by the Principal and Staff of the School for his continued success and outstanding performance.

Rakith is musical too and is quite an expert with the trumpet, accompanying his mother who plays the guitar at Sri Lankan organized musical shows.

Rakith's connection to the ECFU is that his mother, Sharmini Jayewardene, is the youngest daughter of Flora and Sri Sangabo.

JOB OPPORTUNITY

Bill Gates, organized an enormous session to recruit a new Chairman for Microsoft Europe. 5000 candidates assembled in a large room. One candidate was Somapala Hemapala, a Sinhalese living in USA.

Bill Gates, thanked all the candidates for coming and asked those who do not know JAVA Programming to leave. 2,000 people leave the room.

Somapala says to himself, ' I do not know JAVA but I have nothing to lose if I stay. I'll give it a try '.

Bill Gates, asked the candidates who never had experience of managing more than 100 people to leave. 2000 people leave the room.

Sompala says to himself ' I never managed anybody by myself but I have nothing to lose if I stay. What can happen to me ? ' So he stays.

Then Bill Gates, asked candidates who do not have management diplomas to leave. 500 people leave the room. Somapala says to himself, ' I left school at 15 but what have I got to lose ? ' So he stays in the room.

Lastly, Bill Gates, asked candidates who do not speak Serbo-Croat to leave. 498 people leave the room.

Somapala says to himself, ' I do not speak one word of Serbo-Croat but what do I have to lose ? ' So he stays and finds himself with one other candidate.

Everyone else has gone. Bill Gates, joined them and said ' Apparently you are the only two candidates who have all the required qualifications and experience I am looking for and speak Serbo-Croat, so I'd now like to hear you have a conversation together in that language.' and ...

Calmly, Somapala turns to the other candidate and says, ' Kohomada Machang ? '

The other candidate answers, ' Ammata Hudu ..... umbath Lankavenda ? '

JAFFNA POTATOES

An old man, living alone in Jaffna wanted to prepare his potato garden, but it was very hard work. His only son, who would have helped him, was in prison. The old man, wrote a letter to his son and stated his problem.

Dear Son,
I am feeling pretty bad, because it looks like I won't be able to plant my potato garden this year. I hate to miss doing the garden,

OBITUARY

We record with profound sorrow the death of Dr. Naomal Jayasundera, Victor Atapattu, Prina Corea, Tissa de Alwis and Ernest Corea.

The ECFU offers its heartfelt sympathies to the bereaved families.

May God give them the strength and the courage to bear their irreparable loss.

TISSA DE ALWIS

Tissa de Alwis, served in the Edirimana Corea Family Union for an year until his health, after a second kidney transplant and a by-pass did not permit him to lead an active life.

Before his illness he was thoroughly involved, serving in the Executive Committee of the S.Thomas' College Old Boys' Association and played an active role in contributing a significant share towards helping the school. As a parent he showed tremendous interest in taking an active part in the affairs of the association,

When I was to be the Chairman of the Royal-Thomian Cricket Match for the first time and the Warden asked me whom I would like to have as Secretary, my choice was Tissa. I knew that he and I together would make a strong combination. We continued as Chairman and Secretary for a few more years, working our guts out!

Since our early schoolboy days Tissa and I cultivated a warm relationship during the times when he visited our home in Chilaw in the company of his parents. Much later, when we worked together in Thomian Fairs and Thomian Nites, we became a strong combination!

He served in the Board of Governors of STC from 1992 to 1996, was a Member of the Executive Committee of the OBA for a number of years and was Secretary and later President of the STC Centenary Group. He was the first Life Member of the Old Thomians Swimming Club, a glowing tribute paid to him in recognition of his outstanding services to the Club.

He started his career as an Apprentice at Walkers and thereafter served at A.F.Jones and Arumugam Brothers. In everyone of these companies he displayed skill and was highly respected.

Tissa, worshipped in the Church of St. Francis of Assisi and served his Creator in an exemplary manner. When he was struck by an acute kidney failure Ruth rose to the occasion and with love and fervent prayers gave over her kidney to the husband she loved so dearly. The surgery was successful but after some time a second transplant became necessary. Even after the second transplant he was in and out of hospital. Yet, what was amazing was his faith in God and how courageously he faced crisis after crisis.

Despite the seriousness of his condition, Tissa, was full of fun and wherever he was there was laughter. His company was very much in demand at all social gatherings. He believed in enjoying life and that he did, to the fullest. Ruth, indeed will find it difficult to come to grips with the situation that she has to go on without the devoted husband that she always had by her side.

Ashan and Nuala, their spouses and the grand-children will feel the absence of a devoted father, father-in-law and grand-father who always occupied centre stage in their lives. May God give them the strength and the courage to bear this irreparable loss.

CHARLES ALFRED ERNEST COREA

Charles Alfred Ernest Corea, born on 9th June 1920, left this world to be with his Creator on his 90th birthday. Patricia, his devoted wife and those who are near and dear to him were waiting patiently until the morning to wish him a Happy Birthday crowned with God's abundant blessings only to discover that he had peacefully passed away. The life of Charles Alfred Ernest Corea ended on a day when his loved ones had planned to shower him with affection and celebrate his 90th birthday. The Lord took him away to be in a better world that has been prepared for the good and faithful.

Ernie, as he was affectionately called was the son of the late Dr. James Alfred Ernest Corea and Mrs Mildred May Corea nee Wickremeratne. He was blessed with all the exemplary qualities that his father and mother inherited from their parents. A gentleman to his finger tips, he stood out as a human being who lived according to the principles he believed in.

He was kind, understanding and caring and for what he was, he was loved and respected by all who came to know him. He was proud to be a Christian and a Corea and his associates acknowledged him to be a rare human being with sterling qualities!

He received his education at Ladies College, Colombo 7, and later at S.Thomas' College, Mount Lavinia. He left S.Thomas' to support his mother and nurse his father when he suffered a stroke and was bedridden. Between the mother and the son there was nothing they did not do to keep the husband and the father they loved so dearly well taken care of. With the death of his father Ernie, resumed his education at St. Mary's College, Chilaw and passed the Senior School Certificate examination. He excelled in cricket and captained the St. Mary's College cricket eleven with outstanding performances.

Ernie, left school at an early age to earn an income for himself. He joined the Excise Department and was posted to Hikkaduwa. Before long he became a popular figure and was highly respected for his honesty, efficiency and his unassuming ways. Being the eldest in a family of four, he took over the responsibilities of guiding the destinies of the family comprised of his widowed mother, brother Malcolm and two sisters, Euna and Ernestine. He married Patricia Samarasekera who was on the staff of Bishop's College and left the Excise Department to join Law College and pursue a career as a lawyer.

With most of the Coreas being legal luminaries, Ernie was sure in his mind that he will live up to the reputation of his uncles and cousins who were dominating the Chilaw Bar. When he did pass out as an Attorney-at-Law, he chose to practise in Panadura, without having to compete with his illustrious kith and kin in the Chilaw Courts. Sooner than people expected, Charles Alfred Ernest Corea became one of the leading lawyers, carving out a lucrative practice for himself. He acted as District Judge on several occasions till his retirement.

An admirable feature in Ernie was that he was a devout Christian, closely associated with St. Luke's Church, Mampe. He was the Diocesan Representative of the Church, and enjoyed playing his part in the activities of the Church. He also served as Warden and in his own inimitable style had the interest of the Church foremost in his mind and enjoying being a parishioner of the Church. Ernie's faith in God was his greatest virtue!

He inaugurated the Lions Club of Piliyandala, simply because he had the passion to serve the under-privileged and was the inspiring Charter President who gave the Club the desired dynamic leadership. Despite his fluency in English he conducted meetings in Sinhala in order to meet the club's popularity has the first Sinhala speaking Lions Club in Sri Lanka.

He played an active part in the formation of the Edirimana Corea Family Union and at the request of the founder, Henri Corea, drafted the Union's Constitution and later became its second President and went on to serve as the Patron.

HUSBAND & WIFE COMBINATION

The Edirimana Corea Family Union is indeed fortunate to have members giving their unstinted support to keep the Wheels of the Union turning! Two such people are Neville and Suvendreni Weerasekera who function as our Secretary and Treasurer for many years. Although it is an accepted fact that much of their free time is taken up in ECFU work, ungrudgingly they continue to give of their best and we, in the ECFU know that they are irreplaceable because of their matchless efficiency! Even with the wealth of talent that is available within the Union they are in fact irreplaceable!

As the Union's Secretary, Neville, does his job meticulously despite his other commitments. He always measures up to the Union's expectations and that makes the Union solid and Neville, a Tower of Strength. Suvendreni, as the Union's Treasurer keeps track of the Income and Expenditure and like any budget conscious housewife looks after the Union's financial resources with utmost care.

The ECFU in general and the President, in particular say 'Thank You' to this fantastic husband and wife combination for their immeasurable contribution to the Edirimana Corea Family Union is flawless! Both Neville and Suvendreni have qualified to be the Union's Secretary and Treasurer for Life!!

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

At the next Annual General Meeting of the Edirimana Corea Family Union Flora and I will not be in Sri Lanka to actively participate in it. I am truly sad that I am missing an important event in the ECFU calendar which brings us together in a spirit of fellowship.

The AGM also signals my handing over the mantle of the President to Eugene who I am sure will guide the Union with astute leadership. I would have very much liked to be present to formally hand over the mantle of chief executive on the very day that has been selected for this change to take place. Needless to say, I will be with you in spirit wishing the Union all the success it deserves under the reliable in-coming President.

I must say that it was a pleasure and a privilege to be at the helm of this distinguished Union. Much of the plans I had in mind during my tenure as President could not be put into operation due to the state of affairs in the country not being conducive. The one thing I was determined to do was to organize a fund-raiser that will bring in funds and that was achieved through the ECFU Christmas Card project. Without an inflow of funds there isn't much that a family union such as our's can do. I am sure the Christmas Card project also gave the impetus for more fund-raisers to be organized in the new year.

Flora joins me in wishing you, one and all, an enjoyable day with the kith and kin that will be remembered for a long time!

SIR CLAUDE COREA

The crowd that gathered at his home and the cemetery to pay their respects was a glowing tribute to the lasting impression he had created during his lifetime.

Pat, Earnest, Eugene, Patsy and Averille have the consolation that Ernie lived an exemplary life.

Sir Claude was born in the year 1894, the second son of Windsor and Sarah Corea. Claude was my father Ashley's older brother. He was the second in a family of seven children.

My father was especially close to his brother Claude who was only two years older than him. When they grew up both brothers took to the Legal profession and became Proctors of the Supreme Court. They were apprenticed to their uncle, Jimmy Corea of 'Sigiriya', Chilaw, and they established a lucrative practice in their hometown - Chilaw. The office was situated in Bridge Street, in close proximity to the Courts.

It was not long before Claude showed an affiliation to Politics. He won the Chilaw seat uncontested and thereafter continued to be M.P. for Chilaw returned uncontested several times. In Mr. D.S. Senanayake's Cabinet he was the Minister for Trade and Commerce. Subsequently, he was appointed High Commissioner for Ceylon in the U.K., accredited to France and Belgium. He served as Ceylon's Permanent Representative in the U.N. At this time he was struck by illness and had to retire from the Diplomatic Service.

Uncle Claude was a suave Diplomat, an Ambassador par excellence, Courteous to his fingertips, soft-spoken and witty with a disarming smile that lit up his face. I wonder why they don't make Diplomats in that mould anymore!

There was also a spiritual side in his make-up. I remember once when he visited us he related a grim story of a flight he took from England to the U.S. When they were flying midway over the Atlantic, the plane faced severe turbulence which caused panic among the passengers. Uncle Claude however calmly prayed to his Maker and soon the turbulence ceased. When I asked him to write in my autograph, this is what he penned:

"Courage sister do not stumble
Though thy path be dark as night
There's a star to guide the humble
Trust in God and do the right."

C.E. Bulathsinghala, writing about the Coreas of Chilaw had this to say of Claude Corea -

Claude Corea was a statesman par excellence. His versatility, his brilliant talents and his great understanding fitted him for leadership. He could have shone in any Cabinet or adorned any Government. Had he not been a Christian he might have been Ceylon's second Premier.

Sir Claude died in the year 1962. Ceylon lost a great Statesman and a brilliant diplomat.

Sarge's ice breaker because your mother always loved planting time. I'm just getting too old to be digging up the garden.

 If you were here, all my troubles would be over.
 I know you would dig the garden for me, if you weren't in prison.

With Love
 Appah

Shortly afterwards the old man received this telegram:

" For Heaven's sake Appah, don't dig up the garden !
 That's where I buried the GUNS "

At 4 A.M. the next morning, a dozen STF men and a dozen Military Police officers showed up and dug up the entire garden without finding any guns.
 Confused, the old man wrote another note to his son telling him what happened and asking him what to do next.

His son's reply was: " Go ahead and plant your potatoes Appah.
 It's the best I could do for you from here."
